

Getting Fancy Now: Walk-In Wine Vault

Of course, for aficionados who can run through 26 bottles in a week -- or during a particularly thirsty dinner party -- it might be time to think bigger. Walk-in wine vaults, from makers like Vinotemp, are usually at least 6-by-6 feet, start at around $3,000 and hold 1,000 or more bottles. Models can be tricked out with decanting tables and fingerprint security; fancy woods and stainless steel push prices into the five figures.
